Attached hereto for your review are Training Evaluation Reports on 9 employees of the Comptroller's Office who recently completed the 6 weeks' Basic Intelligence Course conducted by the Office of Training (one of the employees, [REDACTED], attended only the last half of the course). The 6 weeks' Basic Intelligence Course consists of two parts (a) 3 weeks' of basic intelligence indoctrination on which the students were rated on the printed forms attached, and (b) a 3 weeks' Administrative Support Course on which the students were rated on the ditto forms attached.

2. You will note that the ratings of the 8 individuals who took the 3 weeks' Intelligence Indoctrination part of the Course were, on the whole, considerably below the average in "centile standing" in relation to other individuals who took the Course, and two of the individuals "failed" in 2 of the 3 subjects comprising this part of the Course. On the other hand, the ratings on the last half of the Course devoted to Administrative Support averaged "excellent", and the 2 individuals who "failed" part of the first half of the Course received better than satisfactory ratings on the second (Administrative Support) part of the Course.
